

Valentine pages 274-283

After a ton of rocket building it was time to take a break. They were going to head to the dugout. The dugout is where the dances happened in the school district. Kids would come and dance the night away. While other kids came to sneak off to smoke, or make out. Sherman and Homer were going to get a ride from Jim, but Jim took off without them. So they ended up hitchhiking to the dance. While on their way they played pool. When they finally got there the dance was halfway through.

They paid a quarter to get in, and got a stamp as proof of admission. Sherman danced with a lot of girls, so did Homer. During the dance his older brother came in with his date. His date was Dorothy Plunk. Homer was furious and devastated, as he watched his brother put on the moves, with the girl he loved.

Then out of nowhere Valentine came and asked him to dance. He danced with her and then she started nibbling his ear. Then they went to her boyfriend's car and got intimate. She left him awestruck. And then she took off in her boyfriend's car. Homer then hitchhiked home.
